Help & FAQ

GoGold: FAQs for Girl Scouts

How do I locate my Girl Scout council?

When you create a GoGold profile, you'll need to select your council. It's important to select the correct one because that is where your proposal and final report will be sent. If you're not sure what your council is, you can look it up by your zip code using the Girl Scout Council Finder Tool.

When should I contact my council?

You'll want to check in with your council before beginning your Gold Award proposal (steps 3-5). Your council will be an invaluable resource for you as you plan and carry out your project. They may also have specific guidelines that you should follow for things like choosing a project advisor and raising money.

You can visit your council's Gold Award page for more information. Once you are in GoGold, you can access their Gold Award page by clicking on the council logo in the upper right corner of your dashboard.

What Internet browser should I use to access GoGold?

Please use the latest version of Chrome, Edge, Firefox, or Safari for the smoothest experience.

How do I update my profile or council information?

If you need to update any of your profile information (for example, if you need to correct your council), you can click on the hamburger menu – or the three horizontal lines in the upper left corner of your GoGold page. From there, you can select “profile” to edit your information. Just be sure to hit the yellow “save” button when you're done.

What do the symbols on my dashboard mean?

You can access your dashboard anytime by clicking on the GoGold logo at the top of the page, or through the hamburger menu. As you complete steps, you will notice three different symbols on your dashboard:

- The full circle—step is available, but not yet started.
- The check mark—step is complete.
- The circle outline—step is in progress, but that not yet complete.
- The eye—step is view-only, and you are not currently able to edit it. In the example below, you would not be able to edit steps six and seven until step five is complete and your proposal has been approved by your council.

How can I be sure that I've completed a step?

When you reach the final tab in a step, be sure to hit the yellow “I'm Finished” or “Send to Council” able to edit your proposal or view your proposal until completion. Your proposal is only approved by your council.

How can I be sure that I've completed a step?

When you reach the final tab in a step, be sure to hit the yellow “I'm Finished” or “Send to Council” button. If that button is gray, that means you are missing information in one or more of your tabs, which will be indicated in red text on those tabs.

(Pro tip: some of the most common tabs where this happens are the “theme” tab and the “expenses” tab in step four. If the “theme” tab tells you that you have reached the maximum number of selections, you'll need to unselect a theme.)

I entered the wrong email address for my project advisor/troop leader. How can I fix it?

In your profile, you'll enter contact information for your troop leader and in step three, you'll enter contact information for your project advisor. In step five, you'll send them verification emails by clicking a button. If you realize that you've entered the wrong email after pressing send, don't worry!

- You can edit your troop leader's email by returning to your profile's “council” tab, entering the correct info and clicking “save”.
- To edit your project advisor's info, return to step three (“get help”) and click on the “team” tab. You'll then want to click the green pencil icon next to the name you would like to edit.

Once you edit the entry, be sure to hit “save”, then “finished”.

You'll then need to re-send the verification email to the correct address in the “verify” tab of step five. Just hit the yellow “re-send request” button under the correct team member.

How can I make changes to my proposal after I submitted it?

Once you submit your proposal to your council, steps three through five will be view-only. You will not be able to make changes as your council reviews your proposal, or after they approve it. If you decide you would like to make changes to it, please contact your council to let them know. They will need to set your proposal status to “needs improvement”. This will allow you to edit steps three through five.

*After your proposal is approved, Step 3: Build Your Team will reset to “complete”. That way, if your team changes during implementation, you can make the relevant updates and submit a current team list with your final report (Step 7).

How can I begin troubleshooting autosaving issues I am experiencing?

Autosaving issues are usually tied to the Internet browser. Here are three initial steps that you can take to resolve your issue.

- Make sure that you are using the latest version of Chrome, Edge, Firefox, or Safari to access GoGold.
- Clear your browser's history, cache, and cookies for all time (you can find out more about that at the end of this document).
- Refresh GoGold in your Internet browser.

If those three steps don't work, we recommend that you try using a different browser (for example, you can try using Edge instead of Chrome), and then a different computer or mobile device, to see if you're still experiencing the same issue.

How can I receive technical support?

Please contact the GoGold team at GoGoldOnline@GirlScouts.org. We recommend copying your council Gold Award contact to keep them informed, especially for time-sensitive issues.

How do I clear my history, cache, and cookies for all time?

Clearing your history, cache, and cookies resets your browser's stored information. This is important to do so that your browser uses the correct settings for the new and improved GoGold. The process for clearing your history, cache, and cookies will differ slightly by internet browser. Here are instructions for each of our four recommended browsers.

What's a root cause?
 The Collins English Dictionary defines 'root cause' as the fundamental reason for the occurrence of a problem. In short: Root causes are an issue's activator—they identify why an issue is happening.

Often you'll have to look for the why in a lot of places in order to get to the root causes.

Example – Rachel's Gold Award: Rachel is passionate about ocean conservation. She asks why ocean pollution happens and lists several causes, including acid rain, soil runoff, and oil spills. She remembers witnessing the harmful impact of a major oil spill in her local ecosystem and decides to learn more about why oil spills happen. Rachel reaches out to experts and, after additional research, learns that a lack of safety protocols for oil storage is one of the root causes. She chooses to create a project that addresses how oil storage can be made safer to prevent spills.

Learn more in the Your Guide to Going Gold.

Example Target Audiences
 Your target audience may include one or more of the following groups:

- Adults
- Educators
- Elected officials
- Business owners
- Infants and toddlers
- Children of preschool age
- Children of elementary school age
- Children of middle school age
- Retired adults
- People with physical disabilities
- People with mental illness

Make sure to be specific: For instance, you might be reaching elementary school children in science classes, high school students in band, or parents of kids with mental illness.

Stuck? Consider these possibilities, or identify your own!
 Your target audience might...

- Demonstrate a deeper understanding of the skill or issue
- Demonstrate a change in a choice, behavior, or habit
- Become an advocate for the issue/tell others about it
- Become a volunteer/agent involved in an actionable way
- Teach others a new skill
- Earn a grade (in school settings only)
- Other

Remember: be specific! Will your audience complete a survey or pass a test to demonstrate a deeper understanding of a skill or issue? How are they helping others about the issue?

Before you dive in, learn how your target audience likes to be addressed.
 This is especially important if you're seeking with or on behalf of people who are marginalized by society. Different groups—and different people within a given group—use different preferences when it comes to how they like to be talked and written about. For example:

- person who is deaf / deaf person (read more)
- Native American / American Indian / Native person / Indigenous person
- mixed race / biracial / multiracial
- genderqueer / nonbinary / gender fluid
- senior citizen / senior / older person / elder

Find out how the people you're representing prefer to be written/talked about ideally by asking them directly, and accommodate their preferences to the best of your ability throughout every stage of your project.

Defining National and/or Global link

Identifying a national and/or global link doesn't mean you need to travel or expand your project across the globe. It's likely that the issue you've been working towards addressing is relevant worldwide—it can be found in your own local, regional, or national community and across the globe, whether it's poverty, hunger, illiteracy, homelessness, or pollution.

CREATE YOUR PLAN

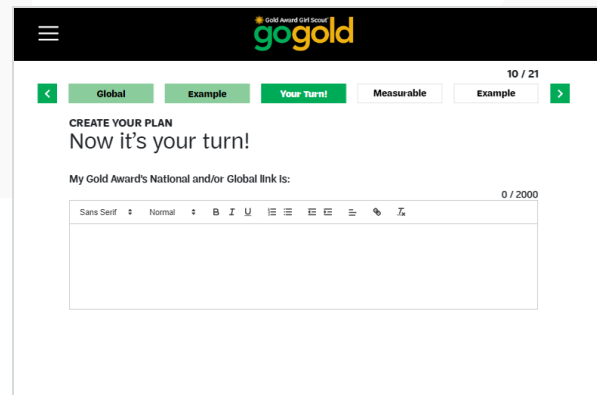

How to Identify your National and/or Global link

Research how other areas, communities, or countries address your issue. Seeing how other people and places implement solutions might inspire your actions and will absolutely show you a national or global connection. Consider reaching out, explaining your ideas, and asking for their advice, ideas, and even collaboration. You can use what you learn to inform your project. Plus, these kinds of partnerships can be excellent ways to ensure your project's sustainability.

Example—Alyssa's Gold Award:

After meeting with her local district attorney during a school field trip and learning about human trafficking, Alyssa decided to explore and address this global issue through her Gold Award. She identified that this issue is not well known enough to be correctly identified, so she produced a documentary on domestic human sex trafficking that the FBI now uses for training purposes across the nation. Alyssa worked with the FBI and local law enforcement to identify their needs for training, as well as victim advocates from around the world to discover and share best practices. Once the documentary was completed, she traveled throughout her region to build awareness of human sex trafficking.

Your Impact is measurable when you collect information or data throughout your project and use it to show that your actions have had a positive effect on the community and/or contributed to addressing your issue. So, think about what you can count in your project. How much? How many?

How to Set Measurable Goals:

Think about what you can count! In order to measure the effectiveness of your project, this means that you will need to set a goal or two! That way, when you measure your results, you'll know how effective your project was overall. Goals can feel intimidating, but remember, you're setting them for yourself—and they are adaptable.

Example—Alyssa's Gold Award:

The target audience(s) for my Gold Award is/are: FBI, high school students and adults.

The skills, knowledge and/or attitudes my target audience will gain are: ability to identify human trafficking warning signs and the ability to advocate on behalf of potential victims.

I will know my target audience has gained the desired skills or knowledge because: they can identify human trafficking warning signs and know how to help.

Measuring My Gold Award Project's Success

Determine how you'll measure your project's success by identifying what your target audience(s) will learn/gain, and then how and when you'll measure that impact.

Now set goals that will help frame your project's impact—they are a great foundation for helping you measure your project's success. Once you get started, you may realize you need to make adjustments—that's ok, it's all part of the process. Your goals should be detailed, relevant... and also include a target date of completion.

My Gold Award Project Goals Are:

What my audience will learn/gain	How I will measure impact	When I will measure impact
Knowledge of warning signs	Survey	After watching documentary or presentations
Know how to advocate on behalf of victims	Successful role play	During Presentations

Now set goals that will help frame your project's impact—they are a great foundation for helping you measure your project's success. Once you get started, you may realize you need to make adjustments—that's ok, it's all part of the process. Your goals should be detailed, relevant... and also include a target date of completion. My Gold Award Project Goals Are:

I will reach over 100 FBI agents, high school students, and adults through my documentary and eight two-hour presentations. I will track attendance/views with a sign-in sheet and know my audience developed human trafficking awareness by their survey responses and role play activities.

Project Advisor POV

Hi Test,

Thank you for providing guidance and expertise to Jessica U6 as they worked toward their Girl Scout Gold Award, the highest award a Senior or Ambassador Girl Scout can earn. Jessica has completed their final report and seeks your verification before submitting it to their council for review and approval. This is their last step!

Like at the proposal step, the project advisor should review the Girl Scout's Gold Award final report, certifying the Girl Scout completed the work they committed to in their project proposal. If needed, reach out to the Girl Scout for any clarification. This is the time to ask questions!

Admin POV

The screenshot shows a web form titled "Email Council Reply" with a green header. The form includes a "TO:" field with the email address "gsjessro+u6@gmail.com" and a "Subject:" field with the text "GoGold Submission Mistake". Below these fields is a "Body" section containing a text area with the message: "Oops! Looks like we accidentally sent the approval before your final report fully reviewed. [council insert specific language/next steps here.]" followed by "Sincerely, Girl Scouts of the USA". At the bottom of the form are two buttons: "CLOSE" on the left and "SUBMIT" on the right.

Please Note: Councils can customize the reply email. The image on the right shows the Girl Scouts' POV.

Occasionally mistakes are made and a final report is approved via GoGold before it's fully reviewed. If that happens, a final project's approval can be reverted. Your council will include details on next steps at that time with the intention of getting you across the finish line soon!

The screenshot shows the Girl Scouts' perspective of the email. It features the "Gold Award Girl Scout" logo and the "gogold" brand name in orange and green. A link "View in Browser" is located in the top right corner. The main content of the email is: "Oops! Looks like we accidentally sent the approval before your final report fully reviewed. [council insert specific language/next steps here.]" followed by "Sincerely, Girl Scouts of the USA".

If you receive a Needs Improvement email, your council will provide feedback. Please make the necessary updates on the appropriate steps – not on the PDF directly – and then resubmit to your council for further review.
